Patient Information Form – Request for Adult ADHD Assessment – Part A

Your GP has given you this form because you asked to be referred to a Right to Choose Provider for an ADHD assessment. The information here explains what ADHD is, who qualifies for an NHS-funded diagnosis, and what to expect during the process. Please take the time to read and understand this information before you decide how to proceed.

Please tell your GP if you need support from a social prescriber to complete this form.

ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder) is a lifelong neurodevelopmental condition. It affects how people pay attention, control impulses, and manage activity levels. Symptoms start in childhood and will be noticed across different areas of life such as home, work and school.

National clinical guidance* advises that patients should only be referred for an ADHD assessment if their ADHD symptoms started in childhood, cannot be explained by any other psychiatric conditions, and are causing or associated with moderate or severe psychological, social and/or educational or occupational impairment.

This means that, although ADHD is a relatively common condition there are many people who experience these symptoms that do not need an ADHD diagnosis.

The questions (below) are designed to capture the impact of ADHD symptoms on all aspects of your life including your home life, work life, education and relationships to assist in assessing whether the impact on your life is such that it is appropriate for you to be referred for an ADHD assessment. There is also a second form to be completed by someone who knew you as a child and is also able to comment on any current challenges you are experiencing.

The information provided by you and your associate, together with clinical information provided by your GP, will be shared with NHS Midlands and Lancashire Commissioning Support Unit who will determine whether you meet the threshold for an NHS funded ADHD assessment. The triage will also check that a Right to Choose provider is able to accept a referral for you. Your GP will be notified of the outcome of this triage within 20 working days (4 weeks) of submission, and a copy of the outcome letter will be shared with you at the email address that you have provided.

If you do not qualify for an NHS funded ADHD assessment but the information provided suggests that you have some ADHD traits you will be provided with a list of useful resources to help you understand and manage your ADHD symptoms.

If you are approved for ADHD assessment all the information supplied by you, your GP and associate will be shared with a provider who will contact you when you reach the top of their list, to arrange an appointment. This will be the provider that you nominated unless the triage concludes that they will not be able to meet your clinical needs, in which case you will be referred to your locally commissioned mental health provider.

ADHD assessments take approximately 2 hours, and you may need further appointments to discuss treatment and identify the right dose of any prescribed medication. By completing and returning this form to your GP you are agreeing to attend all arranged appointments. You also acknowledge that if you miss any appointment, you may be removed from the assessment and treatment pathway.

If diagnosed with ADHD by a Right to Choose provider, the only treatment they can provide is medication. If you would prefer a non-pharmaceutical treatment for your symptoms, please ask your GP to refer you to the local mental health service for an ADHD assessment instead, as they are able to offer other treatment options including psychoeducational groups and access to employment and tenancy specialists, for patients who do not wish to take prescribed medication.

Please note that a word version of this document is available from your GP if you wish to TYPE your responses to these questions.

Important information about how your data will be handled is contained within the Privacy Policies which can be viewed at: <https://www.midlandsandlancashirecsu.nhs.uk/statutory-notices/privacy-policy-2/> and <https://staffsstoke.icb.nhs.uk/privacy-notice/>

Previous referrals / assessments / diagnosis of ADHD
This pathway is for patients who do not have an existing "NHS acceptable" diagnosis of ADHD. If you were diagnosed with ADHD as a child, by any NHS service, or by a Private Provider who has an NHS contract to undertake NHS assessments i.e. a "Right to Choose" Provider, and you are now seeking ADHD medication, you should NOT complete these application forms. If you have paid for your diagnosis at a Provider who does not have an NHS contract, your diagnosis was informal, or was undertaken outside the England & Wales, you will need to complete these forms to explain how your ADHD traits are impairing your life. Please note that you will only be referred for an NHS assessment if the information provided demonstrates that you meet the threshold for referral.

There are numerous ADHD Right to Choose providers who can undertake ADHD assessments. However, there are concerns in relation to the quality of assessments being undertaken by some Providers and not all Providers are able to offer all aspects of the ADHD pathway. Specifically, some of the Providers are unable to issue NHS prescriptions for medication or support annual treatment reviews, which can result in patients having to pay private prescription fees for medication, which cannot be recovered from the NHS.

To ensure the quality and completeness of service delivered to patients Staffordshire and Stoke ICB have reviewed the most frequently requested ADHD Right to Choose providers. The providers listed below have demonstrated that they are able to provide a quality service for patients and deliver all aspects of the ADHD pathway.

If you wish to be referred to a Right to Choose provider who does not appear on this list, please ask your GP to make enquiries with the ICB Commissioners, so that checks can be made to ensure they are able to deliver the whole of the ADHD pathway.

Whilst it is the patient's legal right to select the provider of their mental health care there are some instances in which a Right to Choose provider cannot meet the needs of a patient who requires an ADHD assessment. If the information provided suggests that this applies to you, a referral will be made to the local mental health service instead.

PLEASE PLACE A "X" IN ONE BOX ONLY TO CONFIRM YOUR CHOICE OF PROVIDER

Please note that if you do not nominate a Provider OR if you nominate multiple providers, you will be referred to the local mental health provider for an assessment as a Right to Choose Provider cannot be selected for you.

These services are provided by Midlands Partnership University NHS Foundation Trust (MPFT) and North Staffordshire Combined Healthcare Trust (NSCHT). MPFT and NSCHT are the only providers who currently offer an in-person face to face appointment and non-pharmaceutical treatment options for ADHD.

If you are choosing to be referred to the local service DO NOT complete this form. Instead, make an appointment to see your GP and ask to be referred to the locally commissioned ADHD pathway

Please note that not everyone who has ASD and ADHD traits will require a combined assessment.
